Improving Patient Care in Anticoagulation

Invitation to attend workshop on the 27th June 2018

Huge progress has been made in recent years to identify and treat people living with Atrial Fibrillation (AF). Many strokes have been prevented and lives saved through the appropriate prescribing of anticoagulants in patients with AF across our local healthcare systems.

However, there are still likely to be many people locally living with unidentified AF who are subsequently at risk of a potentially fatal and often highly debilitating stroke.

In short, there is room for improvement.

In conjunction with Dr Josephine Crowe, Consultant Haematologist at the Royal United Hospital (RUH), Bath, we are organising a half day workshop to bring together healthcare professionals from across our local healthcare systems to enhance awareness around this important topic. Very shortly we will be able to confirm some nationally renowned speakers who will share some of their expertise to help us develop our knowledge collectively.

It would be fantastic if every GP practice from across the locality was able to send a representative to this highly informative and interactive workshop. This could be, for example, a GP, Pharmacist or Nurse Practitioner.

This meeting has been accredited by BGPert. For more information about BGPert including additional details about meetings visit www.bathgped.co.uk

We look forward to seeing you there!
